

Environmental & Sustainability Policy Statement

We will always carry out work in an environmentally and ecologically sensitive manner. Wherever we operate there will be extensive checks prior to the commencement of works to ensure that our methods do not result in avoidable environmental damage or ecological harm. Whenever we advise clients we will present options to achieve the desired goals whilst minimising negative impacts and promoting positive outcomes.

As a minimum, all our work and management structures will be compliant with the standards of ISO14001:2015, relevant British Standards and industry best practice. We will develop and continually improve an Environmental Management System (EMS) to manage our environmental risks and opportunities. It is our aim to be a sector leader in positive environmental performance.

We will always assess working methods to find those that deliver the desired outcomes whilst also being the most sustainable and least environmentally damaging options.

Anyone working for, or on behalf of, Baseline Environmental Management Ltd will receive a high level of environment training. Training will be delivered by suitably competent and experienced trainers. Training will consist of general environmental awareness and job/project specific environmental hazards, protection measures and opportunities.

We will always be aware that better working practices may exist and we will be open to new information that allows us to continually improve our environmental management and performance.

Any environmental incidents or 'near misses' that occur, will be investigated and the findings will be honestly and openly given so that any improvements can be implemented and used to inform others.

We will consult with our staff and relevant parties on matters of environmental performance and will be open to change.

At the end of each financial year a proportion of BEM profits will be used to support global projects that further the aims of wildlife conservation and/or environmental sustainability.

This policy is reinforced with methods and practices that are available for review under audit.
